BEFORE U. S. COMMISSIONER PENDERY.

On the opening of the Court at 91/2 o'clock yesterday morning, Mr. Josliffe stated that he had heen informed that warrants had been issued against those of the fugitive who were adults, on a criminal charge, and that an arrangement had seen made between the U.S. and the State offi-cers, by which they were not to be served until this investigation had terminated. He would herefore myo if any officer had such warrants, is should be permitted to serve them at once. Cel. Chambers said, he was not surprised at this motion, or to see the gentleman, the champion of the sovereignty of the State of Ohio, and using all his endeavors to bring their people under her laws. but the sovereignty of the Union he had cutirely et aside.

Mr. Jolliffe—"No, sir, not me." Col. Chambers said he knew not what might be the sentiment of the multitude, whether they loved the Union better than anything else, but he

Between the tho termination of the investigation and the time he would take for giving his decision the warrante ould be served.

Mr. Jolliffo still pressed his motion. It might him that they would go singing to the gallows rather than be returned to slavery.

Jacob Flinn, who appeared for the Marshal, said he would look into the matter so as to give the roper advice to the Court. Commissioner l'endery declined to make the slide at some other time, and he hoped these par-ties might have that chance.

Mr. Jolliffe said he understood that the Marshal was excluding a certain class of (the colored) any such order had been issued. With the same

Mr. Jelliffe stated that the subpogness they had issned on behalf of the fugitives had been returned to them by the U. S. Marshal. He declined to serve them. Mr. Jolliffe, therefore, asked the appintment of a special deputy Marshal by this Court to serve these subpents. Mr. Jolliffs then moved that this prosecution be quashed, on the ground that the warrant had no seal upon it. It had in its place simply a scroll, made with a pen, and the word seal written there. That such would be sufficient on a deed or bond, in the State of Onic, he did not dony, but on prosufficient. This was not the Commissioner's fault.

The Congress that passed the Engitive Slave Law had failed to provide a scal for the Commissioner, and if there was a hiatus in the proceeding, it was, thank God, so much the better for the cause of the married women resident in this State: amendment adopted, and bill passed.

He did not regard this as a "fancy matter" as Jol. Chambers termed it. The Court rejected the question, when Mr. Jol-liffe put it in another form.

Col. Chambers thought this was triding with the dignity of the Court. Commissioner Pendery said the Court, understood how to maintain its own dignity, and would ask Mr. Jolliffe what object he had in proving the fact of the death of the child. MR. JOLLIFFE'S REWARKS.

Mr. Jolliffo replied that he intended on the final argument of this case, not only to allege, but to demonstrate conclusively to the court; that the Fugitive Slave Law was unconstitutional and as part and parcel of that argument, he wished to show the effect of carrying it out. That it had cem strange that as the attorney for these people driven a frantic mother to murder her own child. be should domand that they be given upon a charge of murder, but each and all of them had assured him that they would go singing to the gallows rather than be returned to slavery.

Flour, Whisky, and Tobacco have long been regarded hence assires of life—but it is a mistake. We can't tuy Flour—that is, Daguerreotypists can't—for it is too dear; the temper ance men wont let us drink Whisky, and the Tobacco oroy is a failure. What we can't get it is plain we must do without, and what we can do without is not a necessary. The prover , then, is a failure bood. But one of HARRIS'S Dagun cotypes—bright constitute with, bald, and clear—which we can get and sparkling, rich, beld, and clear—which we can get and cannot do without—that is a necessary of life. no.23

To prevent this, Count Nesseirede communicated with Vienna direct, and Prince Gertschakeff, at Vienne, had a talk with Count Buol, in which the former produced a memorandum, expressing the general inclination of Russia to negotiate, but proposing certain alterations.

The Ambassaders of these powers ac-cordingly sent to London and Paris and received in reply that the Western powers had no motive to change their decision, already carefully con-sidered; and further, that, if Itussia did not ac-cept by the 18th, Count Esterhazy and the Aus-trian legation would leave St. Petersburg, and trian legation would leave St. Petersburg, and Austria seek to obtain the armed co-operation of
